HEIRS OF THE VIKINGS

History and Identity in Normandy and England, c.950-c.1015

KATHERINE CROSS

Examination of text concerning the vikings reveals much about their origin myth and legend.

Viking settlers and their descendents inhabited both England and Normandy in the tenth century, but narratives discussing their origins diverged significantly. This comparative study explores the depictions of Scandinavia and the events of the Viking Age in genealogies, origin myths, hagiographies, and the charters from the two regions.

DISCOURSE IN OLD NORSE LITERATURE

ERIC SHANE BRYAN

An examination of what dialogues and direct speech in Old Norse literature can convey and mean, beyond their immediate face-value.

Scholars have long recognized that the wealth of verbal exchanges in Old Norse sagas presents the modern reader with the opportunity to speak face-to-face, as it were, with these great voices of the past. However, despite the importance of verbal exchanges in the sagas, there has been no full-length study of discourse in Old Norse literature since 1935. This book meets the need for such a study by offering a literary analysis based on the adjacent field of pragmatic linguistics, which recognizes that speakers often rely upon cultural, situational, and interpersonal context to communicate their meaning. The resulting, context-dependent meaning often deviates from the base semantic and syntactical components of an utterance: speakers hedge, imply, deflect to save face, or obscure meaning to damage an opponent's self-worth. A wide body of Old Norse materials is examined, including many of the best-known sagas.

FRENCH ROMANCE, MEDIEVAL SWEDEN AND THE EUROPEANISATION OF CULTURE

SOFIA LODÉN

The adaptation of French texts into medieval Swedish reveals the progress of a Europe-wide literary culture.

Translations of French romances into other vernaculars in the Middle Ages have sometimes been viewed as "less important" versions of prestigious sources, rather than in their place as part of a broader range of complex and wider European text traditions. This consideration of how French romance was translated, rewritten and interpreted in medieval Sweden focuses on the wider context. It examines four major texts which appear in both languages including Le Chevalier au lion and its Swedish translation Herr Ivan, analysing them through the lens of different themes: female characters, children, animals and masculinity. The author argues that French romance made a major contribution to the Europeanisation of medieval culture, whilst also playing a key role in the formation of a national literature in Sweden.

THE MAPPAE MUNDI OF MEDIEVAL ICELAND

DALE KEDWARDS

An innovative, interdisciplinary approach to the understudied Icelandic mappae mundi.

The Icelandic mappae mundi (maps of the world), drawn between c.1225 and c.1400, are contemporary to the breathtaking rise of its vernacular literary culture, and provide important insights into the Icelanders' capacious geographical imaginary in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. However, in comparison with those elsewhere, such as the Hereford mappa mundi, they have received relatively little critical attention.

This book explores these maps not only for what they reveal about the Icelanders' geographical awareness, but as complex registers of Icelandic national self-perception and imagining, considering them in their various contexts, notably the physical. It reveals fully how Icelanders used the cartographic medium to consider fantasies of national origin, their political structures, and place in Europe. The small canon of Icelandic word maps is reproduced here photographically, with their texts presented alongside English translations, enabling a wider understanding.
