Brookline Books commissions history and general nonfiction books concerning the Greater Philadelphia region, including the neighboring states of New Jersey and Delaware. We are dedicated to highlighting the lives of Pennsylvanians, both common and renowned, and notable events that deserve a place on bookshelves around the world. We are currently seeking trade nonfiction proposals for biographies and general history. We are not currently considering fiction books at this time. If you have history to share concerning the Greater Delaware Valley, we're interested in hearing more from you!

While we always welcome new submissions, we ask that you do not send us a complete manuscript. Instead, please download and complete the submission form available on our website, and return to commissioning editor Jennifer.Green@casematepublishers.com.
