

Another project with the same objective - the calculation of contour change points. Although several entities are orthogonal lines, there is some challenge in calculating the contour change points at the angular and arc intersections. This is not a machining exercise, just a calculation of the XY coordinate points.

