

Laborious Letter Writing

It is probable that someday soon the Baudelaire orphans may find themselves stranded on a desert island with a notorious villain. Often, people stranded on desert islands write letters and put them in bottles, and then throw them into the sea hoping that their cry for help may be found on a distant shore.

If you were stranded on a desert island with a notorious villain, what would your letter say?

REPRODUCIBLE ACTIVITY

Illustration © Brett Helquist