CONTENTS

Subject

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subject</th>
<th>Pages</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>African American Studies</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>American Studies</td>
<td>7, 16, 21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Biography</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bird Guides and Ornithology</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Civil War</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Environmental Studies</td>
<td>2, 16–17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Foodways</td>
<td>4–5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gender Studies</td>
<td>10–11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Historical Geography</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Intellectual History</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Landscape Architecture</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Literary Studies</td>
<td>16, 20–23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Louisiana Studies</td>
<td>3, 16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Music</td>
<td>6–7, 16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nature</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New Orleans</td>
<td>1, 4–5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Poetry</td>
<td>24–31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Political Science</td>
<td>6, 14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Race Relations</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Religious Studies</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Southern History</td>
<td>8, 10, 13, 16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Southern Studies</td>
<td>16, 20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Travel Memoir</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.S. History</td>
<td>9, 11–12, 14, 16–17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>World History</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>World War II</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Author

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Author</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Pages</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Armstrong</td>
<td>Rescuing Biodiversity</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bailey</td>
<td>The Downhome Sound</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blackwood</td>
<td>The Rise and Fall of Paramount Records</td>
<td>7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brasfield</td>
<td>Cove</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brown</td>
<td>Landscape Fascinations and Provocations</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brunson</td>
<td>A Scar Where Goodbyes Are Written</td>
<td>24</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Campanella</td>
<td>Draining New Orleans</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Curran</td>
<td>American Catholics and the Quest for Equality in the Civil War Era</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DeMers</td>
<td>The Vieux Carré</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gargaillo</td>
<td>Echo and Critique</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Garnett</td>
<td>Taking Things Hard</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haglund</td>
<td>Sister Republics</td>
<td>14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hampton</td>
<td>Doctors at War</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hess</td>
<td>Civil War Infantry Tactics</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Keehn</td>
<td>Knights of the Golden Circle</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kierner</td>
<td>Rethinking American Disasters</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kinghan</td>
<td>A Brief Moment in the Sun</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lima</td>
<td>Adventures of a Louisiana Birder</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lindholdt</td>
<td>Interrogating Travel</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mann</td>
<td>Kingfish U</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>May</td>
<td>Unusually Grand Ideas</td>
<td>27</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Molberg</td>
<td>The Court of No Record</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mulcahy</td>
<td>Rethinking American Disasters</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Osherow</td>
<td>Divine Ratios</td>
<td>26</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ouchley</td>
<td>Flora and Fauna of the Civil War</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peters</td>
<td>When Bad Men Combine</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pierson</td>
<td>The Wild Woman of Cincinnati</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rasmussen</td>
<td>A Girl’s Life in New Orleans</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shewmaker</td>
<td>Leviathan</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Skilton</td>
<td>Rethinking American Disasters</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Skilton</td>
<td>Tempest</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Smith, R.</td>
<td>That Beauty in the Trees</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Smith, T. R.</td>
<td>River of Dreams</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Songy</td>
<td>The Absinthe Frappé</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spoth</td>
<td>Ruin and Resilience</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thorburn</td>
<td>String</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trelease</td>
<td>White Terror</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Watson, Grand Emporium, Mercantile Monster</td>
<td></td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Watson, Normans and Saxons</td>
<td></td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wynne</td>
<td>In Tune</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Front Cover: Plan of the City and Environs of New Orleans, taken from actual survey by B. Lafon, 1816. Courtesy of Wikipedia Commons.
In Draining New Orleans, the first full-length book devoted to “the world’s toughest drainage problem,” renowned geographer Richard Campanella recounts the epic challenges and ingenious efforts to dewater the Crescent City. With forays into geography, public health, engineering, architecture, politics, sociology, race relations, and disaster response, he chronicles the herculean attempts to “reclaim” the city’s swamps and marshes and install subsurface drainage for massive urban expansion.

The study begins with a vivid description of a festive event on Mardi Gras weekend 1915, which attracted an entourage of elite New Orleanians to the edge of Bayou Barataria to witness the christening of giant water pumps. President Woodrow Wilson, connected via phoneline from the White House, planned to activate the station with the push of a button, effectively draining the West Bank of New Orleans. What transpired in the years and decades that followed can only be understood by examining the large swath of history dating back two centuries earlier—to the geological formation and indigenous occupation of this delta—and extending through the colonial, antebellum, postbellum, and Progressive eras to modern times.

The consequences of dewatering New Orleans proved both triumphant and tragic. The city’s engineering prowess transformed it into a world leader in drainage technology, yet the municipality also fell victim to its own success. Rather than a story about mud and machinery, this is a history of people, power, and the making of place. Campanella emphasizes the role of determined and sometimes unsavory individuals who spearheaded projects to separate water from dirt, creating lucrative opportunities in the process not only for the community but also for themselves.

Richard Campanella is a geographer and associate dean for research at the Tulane School of Architecture. He is the author of fourteen books, including The West Bank of Greater New Orleans and Cityscapes of New Orleans, as well as hundreds of articles on Louisiana history and geography.
Rescuing Biodiversity
The Protection and Restoration of a North Louisiana Ecosystem

JOHNNY ARMSTRONG

Foreword by KELBY OUCHLEY

“An avowed student of life and restoration ecology, Johnny Armstrong expertly teaches us how to restore an imperiled southern ecosystem based on deep research, firsthand experience, and delighted observation of the species that return to his beloved Wafer Creek Ranch. Driving his devotion is the alarming truth that loss of biodiversity poses a threat on par with climate change and his impassioned belief that society can alter that trajectory, one acre at a time.”—Cindy Brown, executive director of Land Trust for Louisiana

“In Rescuing Biodiversity, Armstrong passionately describes global hazards to biodiversity, as well as our interdependence on all, including many rapidly diminishing, species. He calls for urgent action and offers hope through a thoughtful and loving description of the restoration of Wafer Creek Ranch. Armstrong’s detailed information on native plant species helps us envision what we can contribute to biodiversity on Earth, whether it be a backyard garden or efforts on a grander scale.”—Karen Gautreaux, Louisiana state director of the Nature Conservancy

Restoration ecology is a vital tool to mitigate the crisis caused by the global destruction of biodiversity, one of the most powerful existential threats to future generations. Johnny Armstrong’s Rescuing Biodiversity tells the story of one man’s attempts to preserve a vanishing Louisiana ecosystem and restore the animal and plant species that once lived there.

As a grandfather and perpetual student, Armstrong witnessed the speed at which the timber industry pillaged local landscapes, and he resolved to protect and revitalize the old-growth forest of Wafer Creek Ranch in north central Louisiana. This fascinating tale recounts his efforts to reclaim the shortleaf pine-oak-hickory woodland ecosystem, once dominant across a wide stretch of land spanning at least four southern states but now virtually extinct. Accessibly written, Rescuing Biodiversity acts as a field guide to the historic upland ecology of the region, with descriptions and photographs of its overstory, salient upland grasses, and brilliant wildflowers. Armstrong takes the reader on a journey through this fragile environment, demonstrating what science-based restoration can look like on land that serves as the prime example of a native plant community in the state.

Author, conservationist, and retired medical doctor JOHNNY ARMSTRONG lives with his wife, Karen, in an old-growth forest and woodland protected by the Nature Conservancy outside of Ruston, Louisiana.

KELBY OUCHLEY is a former U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service biologist. He is the author of several books concerning natural history, including Bayou-Diversity: Nature and People in the Louisiana Bayou Country.

JUNE 2023
240 pages, 6 x 9, 218 halftones, 1 map
978-0-8071-7950-5
Paperback $29.95
LSU Press Paperback Original
Environmental Studies

ALSO OF INTEREST
978-0-8071-7731-0
Hardcover $29.95

www.lsupress.org
The impact of Huey Long on LSU was enormous and more complicated than most folks realize. Kingfish U is both thoroughly researched and great fun to read. Robert Mann masterfully weaves the controversies, visions, and key characters into a compelling narrative.”—Wayne Parent, author of Inside the Carnival: Unmasking Louisiana Politics

“Robert Mann has captured how Huey Long used his power and influence to build and promote Louisiana State University through its Fighting Tigers football team. Kingfish U is a must-read for political types, academics, football fans, and lovers of history and great writing.”—Dan Borné, voice of LSU’s Tiger Stadium and former aide to U.S. senator Russell Long

No political leader is more closely identified with Louisiana State University than the flamboyant governor and U.S. senator Huey P. Long, who devoted his last years to turning a small, undistinguished state school into an academic and football powerhouse. From 1931, when Long declared himself the “official thief” for LSU, to his death in 1935, the school’s budget mushroomed, its physical plant burgeoned, its faculty flourished, and its enrollment tripled.

Along with improving LSU’s academic reputation, Long believed the school’s football program and band were crucial to its success. Taking an intense interest in the team, Long delivered pregame and halftime pep talks, devised plays, stalked the sidelines during games, and fired two coaches. He poured money into a larger, flashier band, supervised the hiring of two directors, and, with the second one, wrote a new fight song, “Touchdown for LSU.”

While he rarely meddled in academic affairs, Long insisted that no faculty member criticize him publicly. When students or faculty from “his school” opposed him, retribution was swift. Long’s support for LSU did not come without consequences. His unrelenting involvement almost cost the university its accreditation. And after his death, several of his allies—including his handpicked university president—went to prison in a scandal that almost destroyed LSU.

Rollicking and revealing, Robert Mann’s Kingfish U is the definitive story of Long’s embrace of LSU.

ROBERT MANN is the author of numerous books, most recently Becoming Ronald Reagan: The Rise of a Conservative Icon and Backrooms and Bayous: My Life in Louisiana Politics. He holds the Manship Chair in Journalism at the Manship School of Mass Communication, Louisiana State University.
“History is full of romance and myth, and the history of absinthe is bursting with both qualities. Marielle Songy manages to keep the romance and the mythology alive while revealing for us the true story of absinthe and the absinthe frappé. You couldn’t ask for anything better than that, except maybe an absinthe frappé in your hand as you are reading.”
—Elizabeth M. Williams, founder of the Southern Food and Beverage Museum and author of Lift Your Spirits: A Celebratory History of Cocktail Culture in New Orleans

“Songy’s history of absinthe, the most storied of spirits, and the absinthe frappé, a truly essential New Orleans cocktail, is brisk, charming, and well-researched. The cocktail guide in The Absinthe Frappé deserves bonus points for including the necromancer, one of my favorite modern absinthe classics. Cheers!”—T. Cole Newton, president of the United States Bartenders’ Guild and author of Cocktail Dive Bar: Real Drinks, Fake History, and Questionable Advice from New Orleans’s Twelve Mile Limit

“You can’t tell the story of the absinthe frappé without it being intractably linked to that of absinthe. Separating fact from fiction, Songy brings the reader along for a ride with ‘La Fée verte,’ including how New Orleans became the absinthe epicenter of the U.S. in the nineteenth century and how that led the way to absinthe frappé emerging from this land of cocktails.”—Sue Strachan, author of The Café Brûlot

The Absinthe Frappé examines the history of absinthe, its origins, and its influences, culminating in the story of the iconic New Orleans cocktail. Marielle Songy reveals how bartender Cayetano Ferrér invented the concoction and delves into the early days of the drink and its first home, the Old Absinthe House in the Crescent City. She explores the ban on absinthe in the United States and Europe and the misguided reasoning behind it, all in the context of New Orleans’s response to national Prohibition more broadly. Finally, Songy discusses the lifting of the restrictions on absinthe in 2007, a move largely spearheaded by New Orleans scientist and master distiller Theodore Breaux, who dispelled long-held notions that the Green Fairy invariably drove its connoisseurs to madness.

MARIELLE SONGY is a writer and journalist living in New Orleans.
“The Vieux Carré is a great little work that takes you on a journey to the New Orleans of the Prohibition era and beyond. I like to think of the Big Easy as the ‘City of Spirits’—both the spirits you can drink and the history that is all around you when you start to explore it. This book has all of the twists and turns of the French Quarter on a foggy night, and you can’t help but be drawn into the story of the unique drink that helped make New Orleans one of the world capitals of cocktails.”—Kurt Maitland, author of Drink and The Infused Cocktail Handbook

“New Orleans is never far from John DeMers’s heart, and he tackles one of our most beloved drinks in his new book about the Vieux Carré cocktail. DeMers tells the riveting story of the drink’s creator, Walter Bergeron, and how his life and creation unfold the rich history of New Orleans in the Prohibition era.”—Neal Bodenheimer, coauthor of Cure: New Orleans Drinks and How to Mix ’Em

“This effervescent ode to one of the greatest American cocktails is one jigger history and two fingers unapologetic promotion. All I know is I need to find a proper bar after reading this.”—Evan D. Turner, sommelier at Krasi Meze & Wine

In this fascinating little book, John DeMers tells the story of the Vieux Carré cocktail against the evolving backdrop of the ever-rich cocktail culture of New Orleans. Mixologist Walter Bergeron created this distinctive drink in the 1930s at the Hotel Monteleone; it was later dubbed “the Cocktail that Spins” in honor of the slowly turning Carousel Bar at the hotel. It’s an iconic cocktail that, in recent years, was rarely ordered or prepared, though that is changing as a new generation of cocktail enthusiasts rediscover the old ways.

The Vieux Carré draws on the local proto-cocktail, the Sazerac, as well as several booze-forward classics including the Manhattan, the Old Fashioned, and, from Italy, the Negroni. DeMers tells all that is known of Walter Bergeron’s early life and also examines the ingredients in this cocktail and how each of them made its way to the Crescent City.

New Orleans native JOHN DEMERS has spent more than half a century as a news reporter, TV and radio host, and editor. He is the author of fifty-eight books of fiction and nonfiction.
“Good music is often nebulous and hard to define. Americana is like that, and The Downhome Sound cleverly avoids forcing the music into a tidy category to study it. Instead, Mandi Bates Bailey focuses on messages and the people, the songwriters and those who enjoy our work, to understand how it affects others. We may seldom see the stadiums full of fans that more commercial musicians enjoy, but we know the impact of our craft, and this book demonstrates that impact can extend beyond our loyal fanbases.”—John Paul White, American singer-songwriter and former member of the Grammy Award–winning duo The Civil Wars

“Using a sophisticated mixed-methods approach, Bailey elevates our understanding of Americana music, its culture and community, and the power of roots music on unfamiliar listeners. An excellent read.”—Adolphus G. Belk Jr., coeditor of For the Culture: Hip-Hop and the Fight for Social Justice

“The Downhome Sound is extraordinary in its commitment to drawing attention to Americana’s Black roots. This is an invaluable sourcebook on Americana music and a refreshing read on how it resonates as a quintessentially American experience that was born and bred in rurality, racism, poverty, and resilience.”—H. L. T. Quan, author of Growth against Democracy: Savage Developmentalism in the Modern World

American roots music, also known as Americana music, can be challenging to categorize, spanning the genres of jazz, bluegrass, country, blues, rock and roll, and an assortment of variations in between. In The Downhome Sound, Mandi Bates Bailey explores the messages, artists, community, and appeal of this seemingly disparate musical collective. To understand the art form’s intended meanings and typical audiences, she analyzes lyrics and interviews Americana artists, journalists, and festival organizers to uncover a desire for inclusion and diversity. Bailey also conducts an experiment to assess listener reception relative to more commercial forms of music. The result is an in-depth study of the political and cultural influence of Americana and its implications for social justice.

Mandi Bates Bailey is professor of political science, Africana studies, and women’s and gender studies at Valdosta State University.

Guy Davis is a Grammy-nominated traditional blues guitarist.
Founded in 1917, Paramount Records incongruously was one of several homegrown record labels of a Wisconsin chair-making company. The company pinned no outsized hopes on Paramount. Its founders knew nothing of the music business, and they had arrived at the scheme of producing records only to drive sales of the expensive phonograph cabinets they had recently begun manufacturing.

Lacking the resources and the interest to compete for top talent, Paramount’s earliest recordings gained little foothold with the listening public. On the threshold of bankruptcy, the label embarked on a new business plan: selling the music of Black artists to Black audiences. It was a wildly successful move, with Paramount eventually garnering many of the biggest-selling titles in the “race records” era. Inadvertently, the label accomplished what others could not, making blues, jazz, and folk music performed by Black artists a popular and profitable genre. Paramount featured a deep roster of legendary performers, including Louis Armstrong, Charley Patton, Ethel Waters, Son House, Fletcher Henderson, Skip James, Alberta Hunter, Blind Blake, King Oliver, Blind Lemon Jefferson, Ma Rainey, Johnny Dodds, Papa Charlie Jackson, and Jelly Roll Morton.

Scott Blackwood’s The Rise and Fall of Paramount Records is the story of happenstance. But it is also a tale about the sheer force of the Great Migration and the legacy of the music etched into the shellacked grooves of a 78 rpm record. With Paramount Records, Black America found its voice. Through creative nonfiction, Blackwood brings to life the gifted artists and record producers who used Paramount to revolutionize American music. Felled by the Great Depression, the label stopped recording in 1932, leaving a legacy of sound pressed into cheap 78s that is among the most treasured and influential in American history.

White Terror
The Ku Klux Klan Conspiracy and Southern Reconstruction

ALLEN W. TRELEASE

New Foreword by KAREN L. COX

“Professor Trelease’s pages stand as a monument to the heroic minority, those freedmen and white Republicans who resisted the seemingly endless Democratic terror and who often paid for their determination with their lives.” — Journal of American History

“This splendid study has stripped the Klan of the heroic imagery . . . and has revealed it for what it really was: a vicious organization manned by white Southerners of all classes, who hated, bullied, tortured, murdered, and betrayed, apparently without shame or remorse.” — Journal of Southern History

“White Terror is an important revisionist contribution to Reconstruction historiography—well-researched, well-organized, well-written.” — Civil War History

Allen W. Trelease’s White Terror, originally published in 1971, was the first scholarly history of the Ku Klux Klan in the South during Reconstruction. With its research rooted in primary sources, it remains among the most comprehensive treatments of the subject. In addition to the Klan, Trelease discusses other night-riding groups, including the Ghouls, the White Brotherhood, and the Knights of the White Camellia. He treats the entire South state by state, details the close link between the Klan and the Democratic party, and recounts Republican efforts to resist the Klan.

ALLEN W. TRELEASE (1928–2011) was professor of history at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro for twenty-seven years. He authored several books on southern history, including Reconstruction: The Great Experiment.

KAREN L. COX is professor of history at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Her most recent book is No Common Ground: Confederate Monuments and the Ongoing Fight for Racial Justice.
When Bad Men Combine
The Star Route Scandal and the Twilight of Gilded Age Politics

SHAWN FRANCIS PETERS

“Shawn Francis Peters’s narrative of the Star Route frauds is at least a hundred years overdue. Casual readers, as well as professionals in the field, will deem it well worth the wait.”—Mark Wahlgren Summers, author of The Era of Good Stealings

“In this crisply written and important book, Peters tells the story of the dogged federal prosecutors who sought to bring to justice the conspirators of the infamous Star Route bid-rigging ring who bilked millions from the United States Post Office. An evocative legal tale of Gilded Age corruption.”—Michael A. Ross, author of The Great New Orleans Kidnapping Case: Race, Law, and Justice in the Reconstruction Era

“Like a detective on a cold case, Peters unravels a tangled web of unscrupulous contractors and crooked politicians who helped make this one of the most corrupt eras in American history.”—Cameron Blevins, author of Paper Trails: The US Post and the Making of the American West

“Combining sharp analysis with the skills of a storyteller, Peters explains the deep linkage between spoilsmen and postal services during the 1870s and 1880s. When Bad Men Combine reminds us that the biggest scandals unfold over decades, not weeks or even years, by shaking the very foundations of the party system itself.”—Jeffrey D. Broxmeyer, author of Electoral Capitalism: The Party System in New York’s Gilded Age

The Star Route scandal captured the nation’s attention for more than a decade, with newspapers throughout the United States characterizing it as an unprecedented case of Gilded Age graft. Shawn Francis Peters’s When Bad Men Combine provides a glimpse into this uniquely tumultuous period marked by brazen greed and duplicity. In the first book to offer a full recounting of the Star Route maelstrom, which roiled American politics during the 1870s and 1880s, Peters reveals how postal service corruption resulted in a remarkable legal case that featured jury bribery and document theft. When Bad Men Combine follows the saga to its culmination as two sensational criminal trials presented evidence implicating some of the most prominent men in America and, perhaps, led to the assassination of President James Garfield.

SHAWN FRANCIS PETERS is an instructor at the Center for Educational Opportunity at the University of Wisconsin–Madison, where he also earned a PhD in United States history. He is the author of six books, including The Infamous Harry Hayward: A True Account of Murder and Mesmerism in Gilded Age Minneapolis.
A Girl’s Life in New Orleans
The Diary of Ella Grunewald, 1884–1886
Edited by HANS RASMUSSEN

A Girl’s Life in New Orleans presents the diary of Ella Grunewald, an upper-middle-class teenager in New Orleans at the end of the nineteenth century. Grunewald, the daughter of one of the Crescent City’s leading music dealers, used her journal to record the major events of her day-to-day life, documenting family, friendships, schooling, musical education, and social activities. Her entries frequently describe illness, death, and other tragedies. Though attentive to the city’s classical music scene, Grunewald also recounts theater shows, Carnival balls and parades, Catholic religious observances, and the World’s Fair that the city hosted in 1884.

Expertly annotated and introduced by Hans Rasmussen, Grunewald’s journal is a rare window on the life of a young woman in the South between 1884 and 1886. Adding depth to that account, Rasmussen includes a shorter journal Grunewald kept of her family’s travels in Italy and Germany in the spring of 1890. In it, she describes visits to Catholic churches, museums, Roman ruins, and other tourist attractions. Tragically, Grunewald contracted malaria during the latter part of the journey and died overseas at age twenty-two.

HANS RASMUSSEN is head of Special Collections Technical Services at LSU Libraries in Baton Rouge.
The Wild Woman of Cincinnati
Gender and Politics on the Eve of the Civil War

MICHAEL D. PIERSON

“A fascinating and elegantly written study, The Wild Woman of Cincinnati restores the complex and compelling ‘Wild Woman’ to the historic record, providing her the dignity, respect, and agency she was all too often denied during her own lifetime. Pierson’s volume makes sophisticated arguments about what the Wild Woman’s story reveals about regional and political divisions, and conceptions of gender and power, in the antebellum United States. An engaging, valuable contribution to the scholarship, which will be of tremendous interest to both scholars and the general public alike.”—Holly M. Kent, author of Her Voice Will Be on the Side of Right: Gender and Power in Women’s Antebellum Antislavery Fiction

Popular entertainment in antebellum Cincinnati ran the gamut from high culture to shows barely above the level of the tawdry. Among the options for those seeking entertainment in the summer of 1856 was the display of a “Wild Woman,” purportedly a young woman captured while living a feral life beyond the frontier. The popular exhibit, which featured a silent, underdressed woman chained to a bed, was almost assuredly a hoax. Local activist women, however, used their influence to prompt a judge to investigate the display. The court employed eleven doctors, who forcibly subdued and examined the woman before advising that she be admitted to an insane asylum.

In his riveting analysis of this remarkable episode in antebellum American history, Michael D. Pierson describes how people in different political parties and sections of the country reacted to the exhibit. Specifically, he uses the lens of the Wild Woman display to explore the growing cultural divisions between the North and the South in 1856, especially the differing gender ideologies of the northern Republican Party and the more southern focused Democrats. In addition, Pierson shows how the treatment of the Wild Woman of Cincinnati prompted an increasing demand for women’s political and social empowerment at a time when the country allowed for the display of a captive female without evidence that she had granted consent.

MICHAEL D. PIERSON is professor of history at the University of Massachusetts, Lowell, and author of Lt. Spalding in Civil War Louisiana: A Union Officer’s Humor, Privilege, and Ambition.

APRIL 2023
200 pages, 6 x 9, 6 halftones
978-0-8071-7872-0
Hardcover $40.00s, ebook available
U.S. History / Gender Studies

ALSO OF INTEREST

978-0-8071-7219-3
Hardcover $40.00s
American Catholics and the Quest for Equality in the Civil War Era

ROBERT EMMETT CURRAN

“This is an extraordinary book: Robert Emmett Curran makes clear how Catholics played a pivotal role in every aspect of public life during the greatest crisis in American history. In his comprehensive, often riveting narrative, Curran explains how many of the prelates and parishioners who battled discrimination against their faith also became defenders of slavery and then embraced the ‘Lost Cause.’ An indispensable book for anyone who cares about the Civil War era.” —Michael Kazin, author of What It Took to Win: A History of the Democratic Party

“Curran’s lively narrative provides new insight into what are indisputably the most turbulent decades in American history. Although mostly newcomers to the United States, Catholics played an often significant role in the politics of slavery, emancipation, and Reconstruction—a role that, in Curran’s telling, foreshadows certain troubling trends in current Catholic political life. His book, grounded in admirably thorough research, will enlighten specialists on the period and also engage the general reader.” —Leslie Woodcock Tentler, author of American Catholics: A History

“Curran’s deeply researched and carefully written study of Catholics in the United States repeatedly substitutes close analysis for cliché. It is an important and sobering achievement, as Catholics and all Americans revisit the distant past—from the Mexican-American War to Catholic tributes to the Confederacy—in order to better understand a troubled present.” —John T. McGreevy, author of Catholicism and American Freedom: A History

Robert Emmett Curran’s masterful treatment of American Catholicism in the Civil War era is the first comprehensive history of Roman Catholics in the North and South before, during, and after the war. Curran provides an in-depth look at how the momentous developments of these decades affected the entire Catholic community, including Black and indigenous Americans. He also explores the ways that Catholics contributed to the reshaping of a nation that was testing the fundamental proposition of equality set down by its founders. Ultimately, Curran concludes, the revolution that the war touched off remained unfinished, indeed was turned backward, in no small part by Catholics who marred their pursuit of equality with a truncated vision of who deserved to share in its realization.

ROBERT EMMETT CURRAN is professor emeritus of history at Georgetown University and author of numerous studies on the history of Catholicism in America, including Papist Devils: Catholics in British America, 1574–1783.
“A biracial Charlestonian with a once-enslaved mother, Francis Cardozo distinguished himself in South Carolina’s government through his high ethics and devotion to duty. He single-handedly belied the false ‘tragic era’ narrative that white Redeemers first foisted on the public and then on historians. Neil Kinghan restores Cardozo to the prominence he deserves and gives readers a deeply satisfying portrayal of his life and times.” —Glenda Elizabeth Gilmore, author of Gender and Jim Crow: Women and the Politics of White Supremacy in North Carolina, 1896–1920

“A Brief Moment in the Sun explains why Francis Cardozo’s life and career mattered so much. His struggles and achievements, and the injustices he faced, are searing reminders of both what was achieved during Reconstruction and how it was overthrown.” —Adam I. P. Smith, author of The Stormy Present: Conservatism and the Problem of Slavery in Northern Politics, 1846–1865

“Determined to correct the historical neglect of Francis Cardozo, Neil Kinghan delivers a powerful tribute to this vital player in the Reconstruction era.” —Orville Vernon Burton, coauthor of Justice Deferred: Race and the Supreme Court

“Kinghan has crafted a masterful biography of one of Reconstruction’s foremost leaders and restored Francis Cardozo to his rightful and meaningful place in the history of Reconstruction America.” —William C. Hine, author of South Carolina State University: A Black Land-Grant College in Jim Crow America

“A Brief Moment in the Sun is long, long overdue. From 1865 until 1878, Francis Cardozo was the most important and influential Black leader in South Carolina.” —W. Lewis Burke, author of All for Civil Rights: African American Lawyers in South Carolina, 1868–1968

“Born to a formerly enslaved woman of color and a Jewish father, Francis Cardozo became one of South Carolina’s most famous—and famously honest—Republicans of the Reconstruction era. A Brief Moment in the Sun is crucial to our understanding of a period when the stakes could not have been higher.” —Dale Rosengarten, founding director of the Jewish Heritage Collection at the College of Charleston Library

NEIL KINGHAN holds a doctorate in history from University College London. He is a former director general for local and regional government in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister of England and a former director general of the U.K.’s Equality and Human Rights Commission.
Sister Republics
Security Relations between America and France

DAVID G. HAGLUND

“Ever since the time of Lafayette, France and America have been squabbling sisters who depend on each other but can’t quite get along. David G. Haglund deftly draws on the concept of strategic culture to explain why they can’t help pushing each other’s most sensitive buttons.”—Jack Snyder, author of From Voting to Violence: Democratization and Nationalist Conflict

“France and America, the two beacons of human rights and republican democracy, should naturally be the closest allies. Yet their relations are marred by cultural divergencies, the absence of a large French diaspora in the U.S., and clashes of individual leaders. Haglund’s colorful exploration of all angles makes for a riveting read.”—Beatrice Heuser, author of War: A Genealogy of Western Ideas and Practices

“The United States and France are long-standing allies but also an odd couple. In Sister Republics, Haglund aptly utilizes the concept of strategic culture to provide a rich and elegantly written analysis of the deep-seated springs of that suboptimal yet special relationship.”—Frédéric Heurtebize, author of Le Péril Rouge: Washington Face à L’Eurocommunisme

“Haglund delves into the concepts of strategic culture and identity to take the reader through an incredible journey across more than three centuries of French-American relations.”—Luca Ratti, author of A Not-So-Special Relationship: The US, the UK, and German Unification, 1945–1990

David G. Haglund’s Sister Republics tells the story of the unique relationship between the United States and its first ally, France. Historians and political scientists have characterized interactions between the two countries in the spheres of security and defense policy in radically different ways: either the two comport themselves in a highly cooperative fashion, befitting their status as old allies and steadfast friends, or they act as bitter rivals, revealing their alliance to be at best dysfunctional and at worst destructive. Haglund uses a fresh approach to reconcile these divergent positions, examining the Franco-American bond through the prism of strategic culture. In doing so, he reveals the cultural factors that have contributed to the suboptimal relationship between the two nations.

DAVID G. HAGLUND is professor of political studies at Queen’s University in Ontario, Canada, and author of The US “Culture Wars” and the Anglo-American Special Relationship.
“Doctors at War is a fascinating, suspenseful account of French Resistance physicians who braved their lives for their country and their integrity, as well as the story of their colleagues who became reluctant or enthusiastic collaborators. Richly researched using letters, archives, and personal accounts of the period, this gripping story shows how German officers commandeered hospitals as some French doctors were arrested and deported to concentration camps.”

Doctors at War tells the stories of physicians in France working to impede the German war effort and undermine French collaborators during the Occupation from 1940 to 1945. Determined to defeat the Third Reich’s incursion, one group of prominent Paris doctors founded a medical network to treat injured Resistance fighters who they then secretly transported to Allied countries to avoid forced labor in Germany. Another team of medics organized a cabal focused on intelligence gathering and sabotage that became one of the largest in wartime France, even after the Gestapo arrested and imprisoned its leaders. Deported to concentration camps, these physicians continued to frustrate Nazi efforts by rendering aid and keeping their fellow prisoners alive. Others joined rural guerrilla camps to care for the young conscripts fighting to block German reinforcements from reaching Normandy after the D-Day landing.

These stories, assembled here for the first time, add a crucial dimension to the history of Occupied France. Written for both historians and general readers of World War II history, Doctors at War stands as a dramatic, character-driven account of physicians’ courage and resilience in the face of evil. It serves as a window into life under a fascist regime and the travails of doctors who negotiated the terrifying moral labyrinth that was the German military’s occupation of France.

ELLEN HAMPTON is the author of Women of Valor: The Rochambelles on the WWII Front. She has a doctorate in history from L’École des hautes études en sciences sociales in Paris and is a former lecturer at Sciences Po in Reims and the Université de Paris II-Panthéon.

PATRICE DEBRÉ is professor emeritus of immunology at Sorbonne University in Paris and a member of the French National Academy of Medicine. His grandfather Robert Debré worked as a physician in France and coordinated resistance efforts during the Occupation.

MARCH 2023
192 pages, 6 x 9, 19 halftones, 2 maps
978-0-8071-7873-7
Hardcover $34.95, ebook available
World War II / World History

Published with the assistance of the V. Ray Cardozier Fund
Flora and Fauna of the Civil War
An Environmental Reference Guide
KELBY OUCHLEY
MARCH 2023
280 pages, 6 x 9
10 halftones
978-0-8071-7956-7
Paperback $24.95, ebook available
Civil War / Environmental Studies

Civil War Infantry Tactics
Training, Combat, and Small-Unit Effectiveness
EARL J. HESS
MARCH 2023
328 pages, 6 x 9
15 halftones, 20 charts
978-0-8071-7958-1
Paperback $30.00s, ebook available
Civil War / U.S. History

In Tune
Charley Patton, Jimmie Rodgers, and the Roots of American Music
BEN WYNNE
MARCH 2023
296 pages, 6 x 9
17 halftones, 1 map
978-0-8071-7995-6
Paperback $28.00s, ebook available
Music / Southern History

Adventures of a Louisiana Birder
One Year, Two Wings, Three Hundred Species
MARYBETH LIMA
With a New Afterword by the Author
APRIL 2023
276 pages, 6 x 9
8 drawings, 1 halftone, 1 map
978-0-8071-7955-0
Paperback $24.95, ebook available
Nature Writing / Louisiana Studies / Bird Guides and Ornithology

Knights of the Golden Circle
Secret Empire, Southern Secession, Civil War
DAVID C. KEEHN
MARCH 2023
328 pages, 6 x 9
14 halftones
978-0-8071-7953-6
Paperback $29.95, ebook available
Civil War / Southern History

Normans and Saxons
Southern Race Mythology and the Intellectual History of the American Civil War
RITCHIE DEVON WATSON JR.
APRIL 2023
296 pages, 6 x 9
14 halftones, 11 charts, 7 tables
978-0-8071-7996-3
Paperback $30.00s, ebook available
U.S. History / Nature

Southern Literary Studies

Tempest
Hurricane Naming and American Culture
LIZ SKILTON
APRIL 2023
320 pages, 6 x 9
26 halftones, 1 map
978-0-8071-7905-5
Paperback $25.00s, ebook available
American Studies / Literary Studies

River of Dreams
Imagining the Mississippi before Mark Twain
THOMAS RUYS SMITH
APRIL 2023
256 pages, 6 x 9
26 halftones, 1 map
978-0-8071-7905-5
Paperback $25.00s, ebook available
American Studies / Literary Studies

Conflicting Worlds: New Dimensions of the American Civil War
T. Michael Parrish, Series Editor
Rethinking American Disasters

Edited by CYNTHIA A. KIERNER, MATTHEW MULCAHY, and LIZ SKILTON

“Examining the role of disasters in American history from the colonial period to the present, these well-conceived essays offer unique perspectives on a whole range of calamities. Above all, the authors provide a wise and sobering reminder that history often unfolds in unexpected ways.” —Ted Steinberg, author of Acts of God: The Unnatural History of Natural Disaster in America

Rethinking American Disasters is a pathbreaking collection of essays on hurricanes, earthquakes, fires, and other calamities in the United States and British colonial America over four centuries. Proceeding from the premise that there is no such thing as a “natural” disaster, the collection invites readers to consider disasters and their aftermaths as artifacts of and vantage points onto their historical contexts.

CYNTHIA A. KIERNER is the author of many books, including Inventing Disaster: The Culture of Calamity from the Jamestown Colony to the Johnstown Flood.

MATTHEW MULCAHY has written or cowritten several books and articles about natural disasters in colonial British America, including Hurricanes and Society in the British Greater Caribbean, 1624–1783.

LIZ SKILTON is the author of Tempest: Hurricane Naming and American Culture and head of the Recent Louisiana Disasters Oral History Project.

CONTENTS

A New World of Disaster: Hazards, Environments, and Experience in Colonial British America
Matthew Mulcahy

An Incendiary War: Conspiracies, Disasters, and the American Revolution, 1775–1790
Benjamin L. Carp

An American Plague: Yellow Fever in the United States, 1793–1820
Sarah E. Naramore

Misinformation and the Politics of Reporting on Disasters in the Early Republic
Jonathan Todd Hancock

The Great New York Fire of 1835 and the Legal Architecture of Disaster Jane Manners

Brave Men and Mangled Ladies: Spectacle, Sentiment, and Exploding Steamboats in Antebellum America
Cynthia A. Kierner

Spring Floods and Settler Colonial Ambivalence: A Microhistory of Floods on Wright’s Island in the Mid-Nineteenth Century
Tom Wickman

Richmond’s Year of Disasters: Relief, Reconciliation, and the End of Reconstruction
Alyssa Toby Fahringer

The Slow Disaster of Jim Crow and Lowcountry Hurricanes, 1893–1940
Caroline Grego

Layers of Violence: Slow Disaster in the Cancer Alley Anthropocene
Scott Gabriel Knowles and Ashley Rogers

A Collision of Disasters: COVID-19 and Diabetes
Richard M. Mizelle Jr.

The Myth of the 100-Year Flood: The Language of Risk and the 2016 Louisiana Floods
Liz Skilton
Interrogating Travel
Guidance from a Reluctant Tourist

PAUL LINDHOLDT

“Paul Lindholdt gets around . . . and his tour is our gain. These intelligent essays grasp the nettle of our tainted relation to travel—its seduction, its promise, its implications. Put down that Lonely Planet: Interrogating Travel is today’s guidebook to this neocolonial, climate-changed globe.”
—Jeffrey McCarthy, director of environmental humanities at the University of Utah

“In soaring prose and with a fine eye for observation, Lindholdt examines modern tourism from hometown to exotic destination. Interrogating Travel will expand your idea of journeying, whether through the motion of dance, the layers of prehistory in the backyard, a jungle lodge in Belize, or the aesthetic of solitude.”
—Sarah Conover, author of Set Adrift: My Family’s Disappearance in the Bermuda Triangle

“Interrogating Travel contributes to the large body of literature devoted to travel, but it stands apart in the author’s honest look at both the personal and planetary costs. We live in a time of tours and tourists crisscrossing the globe ceaselessly, when the impacts on ecologies and communities are grave.”
—Robert Boschman, author of White Coal City: A Memoir of Place and Family

“This book offers a thought-provoking, kaleidoscopic reflection on the complexities of marrying international travel with a commitment to environmental responsibility.”
—Carl Thompson, author of Travel Writing

Never in human history has travel been so accessible to so many. But amid an escalating climate crisis that threatens the homes of vulnerable people across the world, has the human cost of trekking the globe become too high? Paul Lindholdt links firsthand narratives with research about the travel trade, telling stories of his reluctant voyages while arguing that carbon-intensive trips abroad may be offset if adventurers come to know and love the landscapes closer to home. Tourism may be the planet’s largest industry, but Interrogating Travel advises readers to stay mindful of the consequences of their journeys, whether visiting local getaways or some of Earth’s most remote locations.

PAUL LINDHOLDT grew up on the Salish Sea but divides his time between Spokane and Sandpoint, Idaho. He teaches literature and environmental studies at Eastern Washington University. His work has been recognized by the Academy of American Poets, the Society of Professional Journalists, and the Washington Center for the Book. He earned the Washington State Book Award for his ecological memoir, In Earshot of Water: Notes from the Columbia Plateau.
Landscape Fascinations and Provocations reflects and builds on the work of Robert B. Riley (1931–2019), emphasizing his ongoing importance for landscape studies and landscape architecture. The title of the volume represents an attempt to distill Riley’s attitude and approach. The book’s core consists of fourteen essays—six seminal pieces by Riley alternating with eight new pieces by other authors, each relating to Riley’s work in a different way.

Riley’s singular and important voice survives in his writing: lean, straightforward, erudite, clever, wryly observant, provocative, accessible, and dense. His writings reflect his love of landscapes, his wariness of jargon, and his awareness of academicians’ and designers’ potential hubris. His essays reveal a lifetime of curious probing and reflection, of serious and critical readings of geographers, anthropologists, psychologists, novelists, and journalists—as well as designers—on landscapes, their design and experience. His subjects include specific North American cultural landscapes; landscapes in literature, memory, and contemporary media; physical landscapes and technology; and the garden, nature, and meaning.

Reflecting Riley’s eclectic, wide-ranging curiosity and influence, authors of the new essays—Brenda J. Brown, M. Elen Deming, Rosa E. Ficek, Lewis D. Hopkins, Rachel Leibowitz, Achva Benzinberg Stein, Linnaea Tillott, and Vera Vicenzotti—including a cultural anthropologist, a regional planner, a historic preservationist, and a lighting designer as well as landscape architects. The book concludes with short reminiscences, assessments, and appreciations from some of the people who knew Riley (luminaries such as Michael Van Valkenburgh, Randy Hester, John Jakle, and Terry Harkness) and felt his influence as teacher, colleague, editor, mentor, and/or friend. Landscape Fascinations and Provocations demonstrates the ways in which Riley’s work continues to provoke others in his field to think and act in directions both new and unexpected.

BRENDA J. BROWN is associate professor of landscape architecture at the University of Manitoba. An artist and designer as well as writer and editor, she has published widely, and her landscape and multimedia exhibits and installations have appeared in Canada, the United States, and Mexico.
Ruin and Resilience
Southern Literature and the Environment

DANIEL SPOTH

“With Ruin and Resilience, Daniel Spoth is taking ecocriticism south to productive places: road literature, food writing, disaster narrative, science fiction and climate fiction, and the rich archive that is the poetry of Natasha Trethewey. Along the way, he seeks to extricate southern environmental studies from the dead ends of white melancholy and nostalgia—the fetishization of ruin—and to direct it toward the hard-earned resilience exhibited by generations of southerners who have known environmental risk, loss, and injustice firsthand. With this fine study, Spoth maps out a southern ecocriticism for the Anthropocene era.”—Jay Watson, author of William Faulkner and the Faces of Modernity

“Spoth’s readings of a range of southern texts show us that one step beyond (or under) the patina of garden or arcadia or paradise there is its ominous reversal. The metaphor of the U.S. South as a place to escape to is as problematic as it ever was, more so in Spoth’s Anthropocene framework. He is one of a generation of critics warning that it’s time to wake up from the spell of magical thinking.”—Michael Kreyling, author of The South That Wasn’t There: Postsouthern Memory and History

In Ruin and Resilience, Daniel Spoth confronts why the environmental stories told about the U.S. South curve inevitably toward distressing plotlines. Examining more than a dozen works of postbellum literature and cinema, Spoth’s analysis winds from John Muir’s walking journey across the war-torn South, through the troubling of southern environmentalism’s modernity by Faulkner and Hurston, past the accounts of its acceleration in Welty and O’Connor, and finally into the present, uncovering how the tragic econarrative is transformed by contemporary food studies, climate fiction, and speculative tales inspired by the region.

Phrased as a reaction to the rising temperatures and swelling sea levels in the South, Ruin and Resilience conceptualizes an environmental, ecocritical ethos for the southern United States that takes account of its fundamentally vulnerable status and navigates the space between its reactionary politics and its ecological failures.

DANIEL SPOTH is associate professor of literature at Eckerd College in St. Petersburg, Florida. His writing has appeared in ELH, Journal of Ecocriticism, and Mississippi Quarterly, among other publications.
“Serious students of the U.S. South have long been aware of the ties—economic but also literary and cultural—between the antebellum South and New York City, but no one has told the story of this relationship in all its complexity as Ritchie Devon Watson Jr. has in this book. Well-researched and extremely well-written, this is a superb exploration of an important subject.”—Fred Hobson, author of Tell About the South: The Southern Rage to Explain

Focusing on the crucial period of 1820 to 1860, Grand Emporium, Mercantile Monster examines the strong economic bonds between the antebellum plantation South and the burgeoning city of New York that resulted from the highly lucrative trade in cotton. In this richly detailed work of literary and cultural history, Ritchie Devon Watson Jr. charts how the partnership brought fantastic wealth to both the South and Gotham during the first half of the nineteenth century. That mutually beneficial alliance also cemented New York’s reputation as the northern metropolis most supportive of and hospitable to southerners.

Both parties initially found the commercial and cultural entente advantageous, but their collaboration grew increasingly fraught by the 1840s as rising abolitionist sentiment in the North decried the system of chattel slavery that made possible the mass production of cotton. In an effort to stem the swelling tide of abolitionism, conservative southerners demanded absolute political fealty to their peculiar institution from the city that had profited most from the cotton trade. By 1861, reactionary circles in the South viewed New York’s failure to extend such unalloyed validation as the betrayal of an erstwhile ally that in the words of one polemicist deemed Gotham worthy of being “blotted from the list of cities.”

Drawing on contemporary letters, diaries, fiction, and travel writings, Grand Emporium, Mercantile Monster provides the first detailed study of the complicated relationship between the antebellum South and New York City in the decades leading up to the Civil War.

RITCHIE DEVON WATSON JR. is professor emeritus of English at Randolph-Macon College. His previous books include Normans and Saxons: Southern Race Mythology and the Intellectual History of the American Civil War.

---

ALSO OF INTEREST

978-0-8071-7888-1
Paperback $25.00s

978-0-8071-3312-5
Hardcover $40.00s
“Florian Gargaillo writes an excellent and fascinating study by demonstrating how poets employed ‘echo and critique,’ especially during and following World War II, in order to wrestle with and question the underlying assumptions of political and public speech. . . . His book is superb across the board, with a thorough and subtle examination of a wide-ranging group of poets.”—Lisa Goldfarb, author of Unexpected Affinities: Modern American Poetry and Symbolist Poetics

In Echo and Critique, Florian Gargaillo skillfully charts the ways that poets have responded to the clichés of public speech from the start of the Second World War to the present. Beginning around 1939, many public intellectuals on both sides of the Atlantic lamented that the political lexicon had become saturated with bureaucratic stock phrases such as “the fight for freedom,” “revenue enhancement,” and “service the target,” designed for the mass media and used to euphemize, obfuscate, and evade.

Instead of ridding their writing of such language, many poets parroted these tropes as a means of exploring the implications of such expressions, weighing their effects, and identifying the realities they distort and suppress. With its attentiveness to linguistic particulars, poetry proved especially well-suited to this innovative mode of close listening and intertextual commentary. At the same time, postwar poets recognized their own susceptibility to dead language, so that co-opting political clichés obliged them to scrutinize their writing and accept the inevitability of cant while simultaneously pushing against it.

This innovative study blends close readings with historical context as it traces the development of echo and critique in the work of seven poets who expertly deployed the method throughout their careers: W. H. Auden, Randall Jarrell, Langston Hughes, Claude McKay, Robert Lowell, Josephine Miles, and Seamus Heaney. Gargaillo’s analysis reveals that poetry can encourage us to listen diligently and critically to the insincerity ubiquitous in public discourse.

FLORIAN GARGAILLO is associate professor of English at Austin Peay State University.
“Taking Things Hard is one of the best treatments of Fitzgerald’s life and career that I’ve read. Robert R. Garnett’s writing is excellent, clear, and accessible, free of jargon and with nice turns of phrase throughout.”—James L. W. West III, general editor of the Cambridge Edition of the Works of F. Scott Fitzgerald

“With Fitzgerald the temptation has too often been to connect glibly the world and the work, at the expense of the latter. One of the impressive virtues of Garnett’s book is to keep a firm balance that allows him to reassess overlooked material while offering a compelling and scrupulous analysis of the literary art of a true American original.”—Sara Antonelli, Università degli Studi Roma Tre

F. Scott Fitzgerald published America’s favorite novel, The Great Gatsby, at the young age of twenty-eight. Despite this extraordinary early achievement, Fitzgerald finished just one novel in the next (and last) fifteen years of his life, ending as a mostly unemployed Hollywood screenwriter. Taking Things Hard reveals the story behind the now-iconic Gatsby, along with Fitzgerald’s struggle to write anything that matched its brilliance.

Robert R. Garnett’s new biographical study of Fitzgerald’s life and work begins by constructing a portrait of the young man who would wholly and uniquely pour himself into writing Gatsby. In the years following its publication, Fitzgerald continued penning stories, some of them among his finest, yet it took him nine years to complete another novel. The downward trajectory of his career had interweaving causes, among them arrogance, irresponsibility, his troubled marriage to Zelda Sayre, financial improvidence, and a destructive alcoholism. At the root of it all, though, lingered the simple fact that Fitzgerald’s most intense and profound experiences had come early, during his truncated undergraduate years at Princeton and the months following his February 1919 discharge from the army.

Taking Things Hard provides a fresh look at the imaginative sources of Fitzgerald’s fiction and considers the elements, drawn from the keen impressions and salient emotions of its author’s youth, that make Gatsby a book that still speaks powerfully to readers.

ROBERT R. GARNETT is professor emeritus of English at Gettysburg College. His previous books include Charles Dickens in Love and From Grimes to Brideshead: The Early Novels of Evelyn Waugh.
A Scar Where Goodbyes Are Written
An Anthology of Venezuelan Poets in Chile

Translated and Edited by DAVID M. BRUNSON

“The poets in A Scar Where Goodbyes Are Written teach us hard and necessary lessons about the nature of displacement, engaging the reader in this most twenty-first century of lives. These are poems that break the heart open—but also make the world ring with their truths.”—Jesse Lee Kercheval, editor of América invertida: An Anthology of Emerging Uruguayan Poets

“A unique compilation of fifteen voices that shed light on and challenge the non-human aspect of statistics that quantify the tragedy of contemporary Venezuelans living abroad. In these poems, each author is a witness that must confront their own truths to reclaim the homeland they remember and to examine the in-between spaces that separate their native land from their adoptive one.”—Leonora Simonovis, author of Study of the Raft

“In poem after poem of this timely anthology, we find the personal meeting the political, shaped by place and by the forces of history. David M. Brunson’s generous editorial vision and his poetically inspired translations bring us art that is as urgent as the news.”—Geoffrey Brock, translator of Giuseppe Ungaretti’s Allegria, winner of the National Translation Award in Poetry

DAVID M. BRUNSON’s poems and translations have appeared in Asymptote, Copper Nickel, Mânoa: A Pacific Journal of International Writing, Booth, and elsewhere. The recipient of a Sturgis International Fellowship and a Lily Peter Fellowship in Translation, Brunson teaches English in Santiago, Chile.

Leaving our land is wound and scar
Some go with scratches from their first bike crashes or pricks from their first vaccines

Others reveal the paper cuts on their fingers when they present their documents and ask for asylum or refuge . . .

Leaving this land is repudiation and resilience rootlessness and longing
It’s our instinct to survive on this geopolitical patchwork quilt worn threadbare but sewn up again

—from “Migration,” by Ivana Aponte

CONTRIBUTORS
Ivana Aponte
Lorena Caraballo
Fergie Contreras Salmen
Elizaria Flores
Miguel A. Hernández Zambrano
Gladys Mendía
Miguel Ortiz Rodríguez
Georgina Ramírez
Gerardo Aristides Rivodó
Ciro Romero
Maximiliano Sojo
Eva Tizzani
Julio Tizzani
Fernando Vanegas
Sara Emanuel Viloria

ALSO OF INTEREST
978-0-8071-0483-5
Paperback $20.95

FEBRUARY 2023
342 pages, 6 x 9
978-0-8071-7919-2
Paperback $29.95, ebook available
LSU Press Paperback Original
Poetry
“Leviathan is a retelling of Job in which the enduring story is made both painfully familiar and frighteningly strange, and so the poem strikes one as Job might have struck its first readers, which, it seems to me, is more than one can reasonably hope from any book.”—Shane McCrae

“J. Joiner, a rich and successful oilman in Texas who has lived ‘as right as a man can,’ has lost his family, his fortune, his health, and is surrounded by unsympathetic friends and the stench of his own failure. Sound familiar? Michael Shewmaker’s Leviathan is the latest addition to the ancient genre exploring Job’s suffering. What is new is that his Job’s frame of reference ranges from the fiction of Vladimir Nabokov to the poetry of R. S. Thomas to the classic horror film The Texas Chainsaw Massacre. A scathing critique of the cost of survival, Leviathan takes its place among those works of literature that would dare plumb the depths of the divine will.”—Mark Jarman

Leviathan, the highly anticipated second collection by Michael Shewmaker, offers an innovative reimagining of the book of Job. Set in the landscape of modern East Texas, the poem unfolds in four cycles of interchanging monologues, each compounding the difficulties of a faith placed in a distant God. With an accomplished music wholly its own, Shewmaker’s verse shifts effortlessly between song and story, unearthing beauty from the deep well of loss and doubt.

MICHAEL SHEWMAKER is the author of Penumbra, winner of the Hollis Summers Poetry Prize. He is the recipient of fellowships from the Bread Loaf Writers’ Conference, the Sewanee Writers’ Conference, and Stanford University, where he served as a Wallace Stegner Fellow. Born in Texarkana, Texas, he teaches creative writing at Stanford.

Yesterday, I watched the shadows lengthen across the wall. And when the sun was setting in the pines, the needles’ shadows branched over my bed—like blooming thistles, or swallows scattering in the wind. I felt relieved and I imagined what the light must look like in the pasture. How beyond the trees, beyond the fenceline, on the pond, the light swells to a brightness only the bass can know, before it dwindles and they sink into the coldest dark water, where they sleep, alone.

—from Leviathan
Divine Ratios
Poems

JACQUELINE OSHEROW

“In the poems of Divine Ratios, lyric form, like passionate intellection, becomes as natural as breathing. Jacqueline Osherow is splendidly intoxicated with the plenitude of the sensuous world and the history of humans making sense through art, and grants us privileged access to this abundant realm. She is a national treasure. We have no one like her.” —Linda Gregerson

“There is such wisdom and music in all of Jacqueline Osherow’s work, but I am especially partial to Divine Ratios, for these poems’ expansive lyricism, their big-hearted cosmologies. . . . Boundless gratitude for these poems’ music and deep generosity of spirit.” —Ilya Kaminsky

“Divine Ratios is proof that Osherow’s ear remains an astonishing gift any poet writing in English would envy.” —Jericho Brown

The reach of Divine Ratios is global, ranging from Tang Dynasty China and the Florentine Renaissance to contemporary Baltimore, post–World War II Berlin, and the landscapes of the Mountain West. The speed and mobility evoked in this new collection by Jacqueline Osherow are not only physical—a traveler’s movement in a crowded, thrilling world—but imaginative, and its poetic idiom is no less varied, as a breezy conversational tone serves as a counterpoint to traditional form. With striking juxtapositions of natural and cultural wonders, this enrapturing volume asks, what is the right proportion—or “ratio”—for living in a world of such splendors, horrors, and possibilities?

JACQUELINE OSHEROW is the author of eight previous collections of poems. She has received grants from the John Simon Guggenheim Foundation, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the Ingram Merrill Foundation and was awarded the Witter Bynner Prize from the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters. She is Distinguished Professor of English at the University of Utah.

Camouflage

An abandoned feather: a dried-out leaf;
branch: a shed antler; a toad: a stone;
in the high tawny grass a tawny bas-relief of half-hidden pronghorns on the run;
geese overhead: gridlocked drivers, close,
leaning on their horns; thunder: a truck
barreling down my street, rattling windows
(an enormous semi, when the earthquake struck).
A branchless tree trunk is an obelisk until its top lifts off, flaps hulking wings and glides: a great horned owl prowling at dusk.
Soon, perhaps we’ll learn—a cricket sings or is that just evening’s quickening pulse?
to rise and reappear as something else.
“James Davis May’s second book begins quietly, chronicling a series of losses, then escalates into a harrowingly exact, artfully rendered portrait of depression: ‘I needed a darkness I’d probably survive / to escape the one I knew I wouldn’t.’ May nails the paralyzing character of his illness and somehow manages, through art and ardor, to negotiate with despair, climbing toward a position that acknowledges darkness but does not deny hope. ‘Forgive me, Love, my difficulties with joy,’ he writes to his young daughter, and to himself and his grateful readers, ‘sometimes the world doesn’t disappoint.’ Unusually Grand Ideas is wrenching, genuine, and superb.”—Mark Doty Titled after one of the side effects of antidepressants, Unusually Grand Ideas is a poignant account of clinical depression and the complications it introduces to marriage and fatherhood. James Davis May’s poems describe mental illness with nuance, giving a full account of the darkness but also the flashes of hope, love, and even humor that lead toward healing. In pieces ranging from spare lyrical depictions of pain to discursive meditations that argue for hope, May searches for meaning by asking the difficult but important questions that both trouble and sustain us.

JAMES DAVIS MAY is the author of the poetry collection Unquiet Things and a recipient of a National Endowment for the Arts fellowship in creative writing. He lives in Macon, Georgia, where he directs the creative writing program at Mercer University.

You remember those fears, what it’s like to stand at the doorway of your room before a forest of hissing shadows that want to eat you, remember the faith you have to have in your own terror to sprint through that dark to the only place you know will save you when you get there, if you get there, which you will, you know it, you will, you have to—

—from “Unusually Grand Ideas”

FEBRUARY 2023
80 pages, 6 x 9
978-0-8071-7659-7
Paperback $18.95, ebook available
LSU Press Paperback Original
Poetry
That Beauty in the Trees
Poems

RON SMITH

“Whether in the shadow of the towers’ forever falling, the confounding Deep South, or his young sharpshooter father drawing straws on Guadalcanal, Ron Smith encounters the sublime in memory, the wry, and the profane in his new collection.”—Linda Parsons

“Smith grapples with history as it verges into myth, in poems that rerender the recent and distant past with rigor and vision.”—David Groff

“That Beauty in the Trees ignites one’s passions again and again with inspired plainsong exploding abruptly into poetry. Smith’s range sprawls over many visions and testimonies of antiquity, memory, and moral declaration.”—Ron Powers

“In Smith’s eyes, ears, and vision, a poem has a very good chance of finding out just how good it can be.”—Cornelius Eady

Moving effortlessly from Virginia to Italy and beyond, Ron Smith’s new volume responds with a range of emotions from humor to horror and with a variety of forms from the sonnet to visually expressive organic shapes. The book’s forty-three pieces gather themselves into three flights that hover above and touch down among the politics of memory and the psychology of beauty. With inspiration drawn from memoir, myth, history, fiction, and the visual arts, That Beauty in the Trees presents, ponders, and sometimes judges the actions, fates, and aesthetics of not only the author’s friends and family but also legendary and historical figures, including Achilles, Cau

RON SMITH was poet laureate of Virginia from 2014 to 2016. He is the author of four poetry collections: Running Again in Hollywood Cemetery, Moon Road, Its Ghostly Workshop, and The Humility of the Brutes. Smith currently serves as writer-in-residence at St. Christopher’s School in Richmond, Virginia.

And now, the florid maples sprayed with amethyst, ochre oaks and crimson dogwoods,
incandescent jasmine of the hickories, carmine fan
of this sassafras flaring in the Salmacis-clutch of a scarlet woodbine can thril any lovers’ stroll into baffled tears.

Why can’t we feel this all the time, whatever it is?
—from “That Beauty in the Trees”
The Court of No Record
Poems

JENNY MOLBERG

“In Jenny Molberg’s harrowing new collection, the witness of documentary poetry meets the fearlessness of the confessional mode. What results is a book of powerful testimony.”—Shara McCallum

“Molberg’s The Court of No Record questions our fascination with violence—specifically against women—and our woefully inadequate and misogynist response to it. Dead, abused, or threatened women (the stuff of so much of our detective/thriller entertainment) are given voice in these fearless poems. This is gorgeous poetry of witness, of social and political examination, of deep intelligence, and of a valiant heart.”—Denise Duhamel

“The Court of No Record takes us on a Dantesque journey through the infernal landscapes of toxic masculinity, intimate partner violence, and legal chicanery as the speaker’s poems are used as evidence against her.”—Philip Metres

Jenny Molberg’s third collection of poetry, The Court of No Record, serves as both evidence and testimony against a legal system that often fails victims of physical trauma and domestic abuse. Drawing inspiration from true crime investigations and artifacts, including Frances Glessner Lee’s crime scene dioramas and the tragic aftermaths of two serial killers who preyed upon women in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, Molberg probes a cultural obsession with violence that performs active erasure of victims’ lives. By engaging with historical texts through a personal lens, she sheds light on survivors who do not find justice and looks toward a future of positive systemic reform.

JENNY MOLBERG is the author of the poetry collections Marvels of the Invisible and Refusal. As a National Endowment for the Arts fellow, she has published in Ploughshares, the Rumpus, AGNI, Adroit Journal, Oprah Quarterly, and other literary outlets. She is associate professor of creative writing at the University of Central Missouri, where she edits Pleiades.

Hunting

The bow is an extension of the arm. The yellow-headed blackbird knows to stop its singing. The gun is an extension of the brain. A cow lows in the twilit field; the man says she’s looking for her calf. The elk heads line the wall. The children have their mother’s shot. The knife is an extension of the hand. Find the place between the ribs, he says. Upward. The hook is the extension of the line. Bait is a human lie made with a fly-shaped mold. Meat is the moment of death. Gun is the language that means America. The bullet is an extension of the gun’s idea, which was a man’s, a man who thought all the way through.

FEBRUARY 2023
90 pages, 6 x 9
978-0-8071-7902-4
Paperback $18.95, ebook available
LSU Press Paperback Original
Poetry

ALSO OF INTEREST
978-0-8071-7074-8
Paperback $18.95

Orders (800) 848-6224

LSU Press / 29
String
Poems
MATTHEW THORBURN

“String is a stirring bravura performance, a love song and a song of war, a chronicle of damage, a testament to our capacity for perseverance.”—Michael Dumanis

“Matthew Thorburn’s String is a harrowing and tender unraveling of trauma, in which the brutal (dis)memberments of war are (re)membered through the point of view of a young boy. Here, string functions as mending, as artful stitching of the liminal—both a doing and an undoing, a narrativization of erasures through stories that are both silenced and then sung.”—Lee Ann Roripaugh

“No book has moved me as much as String, epic in scope but intimate as a lullaby. These poems remind us that life is not about the wish our hope makes as we toss a coin; it’s not that one side of the coin is despair and one side joy; it’s the constant flipping of the coin as it falls and the music it makes ringing against the sides of the empty well.”—Rhett Iseman Trull

A book-length sequence of poems, Matthew Thorburn’s String tells the story of a teenage boy’s experiences in a time of war and its aftermath. He loses his family and friends, his home and the life he knew, but survives to tell his story. Written in the boy’s fractured, echoing voice—in lines that are frequently enjambed and use almost no punctuation—String embodies his trauma and confusion in a poetic sequence that is part lullaby, part nightmare, but always a music that is uniquely his.

MATTHEW THORBURN is the author of eight poetry collections, including The Grace of Distance, a finalist for the Paterson Poetry Prize, and the book-length poem Dear Almost, which won the Lascaux Prize.

After the Bomb

Bits of paper swirled behind my eyes some with treble clefs with quarter or half notes Uncle Albert penciled years ago no longer a waltz a serenade but the hum that follows fell over his charred blue armchair one arm blown off the chandelier a spray of powdery glass burnt carpet turning white under paper flakes fake snow the night’s first faint stars twinkling overhead because no ceiling now no roof.

MARCH 2023
88 pages, 6 x 9
978-0-8071-7904-8
Paperback $18.95, ebook available
LSU Press Paperback Original
Poetry

Barataria Poetry
Ava Leavell Haymon, Series Editor

ALSO OF INTEREST

978-0-8071-7076-2
Paperback $18.95
“I love a book that begins with a ‘cortege of clouds’ and ends with ‘lapis’: it’s rich with ceremonial movement and painterly light.”—Bruce Smith

“To the mystery of ‘what was once never here,’ James Brasfield brings subtle lyricism and heartbreaking narrative. In still moments—when detail animates landscape and weather, bird and flower—the poet welds geography and history into a dynamic present. Close observation powers ‘Cove,’ the magnificent title poem. This ‘song for our species’ is a sublime achievement.”—Robin Becker

In Cove, the compulsive intensity with which James Brasfield seeks to capture a fleeting moment’s imagery, “to choose a song sown / for the moment,” im-bues his poems with a sense of urgency and movement. By exploring the translation of the sensory world into art, Brasfield faces the passage of time and the transitory nature of experience, thought, and memory. The poems find “angles of vision” to rescue a present instant in its essential fluidity, to go deep enough, without distraction, into the moment and reveal touchstones of being. Throughout Cove, Brasfield embraces the enduring effort to create an experience of language that is rich, lasting, and true, as life speeds into and through the future.

JAMES BRASFIELD is the author of two previous books of poems, Ledger of Crossroads and Infinite Altars, and cotranslator of The Selected Poems of Oleh Lysheha, which won the 2000 PEN Award for Poetry in Translation. He has twice been a Senior Fulbright Fellow to Ukraine and has received grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts.

JANUARY 2023
78 pages, 6 x 9
978-0-8071-7660-3
Paperback $17.95, ebook available
LSU Press Paperback Original
Poetry

ALSO OF INTEREST
978-0-8071-6424-2
Paperback $17.95
The Southern Review publishes the best contemporary fiction, nonfiction, poetry, and translation by established and emerging writers. Read original and translated prose from writers like T. C. Boyle, Bryn Chancellor, Megan McDowell, Yxta Maya Murray, Carrie R. Moore, Antonio Díaz Oliva, Wong Koi Tet, and many others.

Recent issues include poetry by luminaries such as Charles Simic, Marilyn Nelson, Sharon Olds, Alice Friman, Jane Hirshfield, Kwame Dawes, and David St. John, accompanying an array of exciting work by the nation's top new writers, among them Maggie Smith, Beth Bachmann, Joshua Bennett, Amaud Jamaul Johnson, David Hernandez, and Danusha Laméris.

Since its inception in 1935, The Southern Review has been a significant presence in the contemporary literary landscape. Notable writers who appeared in its pages early in their careers are now among the nation's most distinguished and important voices.

www.thesouthernreview.org
email: southernreview@lsu.edu
(225) 578-6453  fax: (225) 578-6461

INDIVIDUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
Single Copy $15
One year (4 issues) $50
Two years (8 issues) $85
Three years (12 issues) $110
Digital Subscription, One year (4 issues) $30
Digital + Print Subscription, One year (4 issues) $60

INSTITUTIONAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
Single Copy $30
One year (4 issues) $115
Two years (8 issues) $145
Three years (12 issues) $180

Please add $18 per year for international shipping.

The Southern Review is available electronically through Project Muse: http://muse.jhu.edu

Booksellers: Please contact The Southern Review to order ISSN 0038-4534.

Issues are published quarterly.
GENERAL INFORMATION
Requests for sales and discount information should be directed to our sales department (225-578-8282).

PRICES AND DISCOUNTS
Booksellers: Unless otherwise indicated, all books are subject to our trade discount schedule, a copy of which is available from our sales department. Books marked s are short-discount titles. For information regarding the LSU Press Agency Plan, please contact the sales department or a sales representative.

Libraries: Please contact our customer service department (800-848-6224) for the latest discount schedule.

Prices, discounts, publication dates, and manufacturing specifications listed in this catalog are subject to change without notice.

LSU Press participates in the Cataloging-in-Publication Program of the Library of Congress.

SUBSIDIARY RIGHTS
Inquiries regarding subsidiary rights should be directed to McIntosh and Otis, 207 E. 37th Street, Suite BG, New York, NY 10016
212-687-7400  FAX  212-687-6894

SALES REPRESENTATIVES (CONTINUED)
FOREIGN:
Canada: Ampersand I Phone: 866-736-5620
Fax: 866-849-3819 I Online: www.ampersandinc.ca
Canada (Orders): UTP Distribution I Phone: 800-565-9523
Fax: 800-221-9985 I Online: www.utpdistribution.com
Europe and all other regions: Eurospan I Phone:
+44 (0) 20 7240 0856 I Online: www.eurospan.com

DIGITAL REVIEW COPIES
Digital review copies of select titles are available for a limited review period at: https://www.edelweiss.plus/
Contact our sales department for additional information on digital review copies: 225-578-8282.

DESK COPY POLICY
If your bookstore has already placed an order for 10 or more copies of a title, ONE (1) free desk copy will be provided. To order please include the name of the bookstore, the number of books ordered, the name of the course, and your daytime phone number. A desk copy should not be requested if an examination copy has already been received.

EXAMINATION COPY POLICY
Qualified instructors of appropriate courses may request examination copies of books they wish to consider for classroom use (only three titles per instructor per semester, please). Paperback books are available free of charge upon receipt of a $6.00 per title shipping and handling fee. We will extend a 20% professional discount on cloth editions. Prepayment (check, money order, VISA, MasterCard, Amex, or Discover) must accompany your request and must include a shipping and handling fee of $6.00 for the first book plus $1.00 for each additional book ordered.

Requests must be made on departmental letterhead or from a university email address and include the title of the book, the name of the course, projected enrollment, your mailing address, and your daytime phone number. Please allow 4 weeks for delivery. Please mail examination copy requests to: Longleaf Services, Inc., 116 S. Boundary St., Chapel Hill, NC 27514-3808, fax to (800) 272-6817, or email to orders@longleafservices.org.

Orders and Inquiries
Orders and inquiries regarding stock availability, accounts, invoices, and shipping should be directed to our customer service department (800-848-6224).

Online Orders
www.lsupress.org

Phone Orders
(800) 848-6224

Fax Orders
(800) 272-6817

Email Orders
orders@longleafservices.org

To join our email list, visit us online at lsupress.org

You may contact the offices of LSU Press via MAIL
LSU Press
338 Johnston Hall
Louisiana State University
Baton Rouge, LA  70803

PHONE
(225) 578-6294

FAX
(225) 578-6461

You may contact the offices of LSU Press via
RECENT PRIZEWINNERS

- Navigating the Fiction of Ernest J. Gaines: A Roadmap for Readers
- Women and Resistance in the Early Rastafari Movement: D. A. Dunkley
- The West Bank of Greater New Orleans: A Historical Geography
- Race Crime and Policing in the Jim Crow South: Brandon T. Jett
- Saint Agnostica: Anya Beugovoy Silver
- Wild Juice: Ashley Mace Havird
- Ordinary Psalms: Julia B. Levine
- The Glass Globe: Margaret Gibson
- Confederate Conscription and the Struggle for Southern Soldiers: John M. Sacher