Herodotus and the Question Why

BY CHRISTOPHER PELLING

An intriguing study of the methods used by the Father of History, providing a new window into ancient historiography and the interwoven nature of scientific and historical discovery

ISBN 978-1-4773-2425-7 | $36.95 paperback

“This is a fantastic book: fluently organized, written in a straightforward and friendly tone, and massively supported by research, as the ample and up-to-date bibliography evinces. Particularly interesting and admirable is the establishment of a vocabulary for describing Herodotus’s arguments that is won from his texts and those of his contemporaries and therefore never seems imposed or anachronistic. I can think of no volume that is the equivalent of this one.”

—EDITH FOSTER, University of Queensland, author of Thucydides, Pericles, and Periclean Imperialism

“[An] epic tome. . . . There are not many scholars alive who could match the depth and breadth of Pelling’s understanding of Herodotus; this work lays it all on the table. Every page shows his careful thought, meticulous attention to detail, and desire to push the envelope in our reassessment of the much-maligned historian. The work is a monument to Pelling’s enduring fascination with Herodotus, and it shows that there is always more to be learned.”

Monsters and Monarchs

Serial Killers in Classical Myth and History

BY DEBBIE FELTON

This captivating study uses stories from classical antiquity to show that serial killers were almost as prevalent in ancient society as they are today, challenging the belief that such killers are an artifact of modern society

“This is the first serious, fully documented book to prove that murderous psychopaths—individuals we would now recognize as ‘serial killers’—can emerge in any culture and were roaming the world thousands of years ago. I found the ancient cases from myth and history entertaining, educational, and provocative, and Felton’s interpretations and conclusions are persuasive and worthwhile. Murder plus mythology: irresistible.”

—ADRIENNE MAYOR, author of Gods and Robots: Myths, Machines, and Ancient Dreams of Technology

“Felton’s use of a wide range of examples and sources to document the existence of ancient serial killers, her willingness to cite and discuss ambiguous examples (and make that ambiguity explicit), and her frequent comparisons to modern examples of serial killers make this book thought-provoking, persuasive, and a lot of fun to read.”

Ancient Greek Roots of Human Rights

BY RACHEL HALL STERNBERG

A thought-provoking study that traces the origins of human rights beyond the Enlightenment to the evolution of humane discourse and empathetic thought in Ancient Greece

ISBN 978-1-4773-2291-8 | $45.00 hardcover

“Ideals matter. Ours is an imperfect world—there has never been a perfect one—but we would be much the worse if we had no sense of human worth, of the value of empathy, and of the importance of humane and rational discourse. These ideals were articulated with particular clarity by writers in classical Greece and again in the eighteenth-century Enlightenment. In The Ancient Greek Roots of Human Rights, Rachel Hall Sternberg illustrates, crisply and elegantly, the similarities between these two civilizing visions and why they remain crucial in our time.”

—DAVID KONSTAN, author of In the Orbit of Love: Affection in Ancient Greece and Rome

“The Ancient Greek Roots of Human Rights is a great pleasure to read, offering, as it does, a novel approach to a much-understudied problem in the history of modern ideas: the relation of the European Enlightenment of the eighteenth century to the legacy of classical antiquity. There is a refreshing boldness to the way in which Sternberg presents her provocative argument, which is sure to attract the attention of anyone interested in the history of ‘human rights.’”

—JOHNSON KENT WRIGHT, author of A Classical Republican in Eighteenth-Century France: The Political Thought of Mably

Arrian the Historian

Writing the Greek Past in the Roman Empire

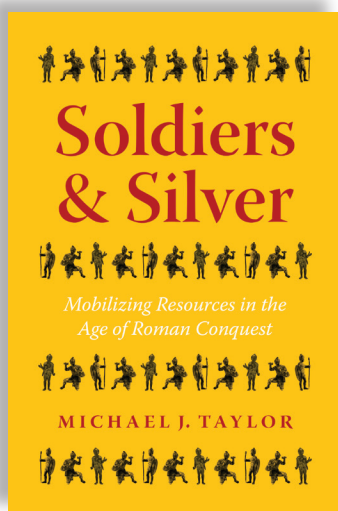

BY DANIEL W. LEON

The most comprehensive study to date of Arrian of Nicomedia as a historical thinker, this book enriches broader understandings of the way history is written and sheds new light on intellectual culture in the Roman Empire

ISBN 978-1-4773-2186-7 | $50.00 hardcover

“Leon nicely situates this study in the context of past and current work on the Second Sophistic, demonstrating the need for this book. It has the potential to make a significant contribution not only to our appreciation of Arrian but also to our understanding of attitudes toward history and historical writing during this period.”

—ALAIN M. GOWING, author of Empire and Memory: The Representation of the Roman Republic in Imperial Culture

Soldiers and Silver

Mobilizing Resources in the Age of Roman Conquest

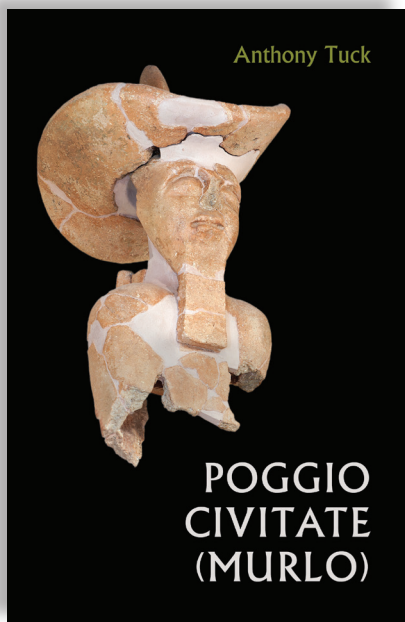

BY MICHAEL J. TAYLOR

A detailed comparative study of resources and military mobilizations in the ancient Mediterranean, this book examines how Rome achieved hegemony over the region and offers a new understanding of the economy of that time

ISBN 978-1-4773-2168-3 | $55.00 hardcover

“Soldiers and Silver develops a novel approach, as Taylor argues that the rise of Rome cannot be fully understood unless its opponents’ manpower and resources are also taken into account.”

coeditor of War, Warlords, and Interstate Relations in the Ancient Mediterranean

Poggio Civitate (Murlo)

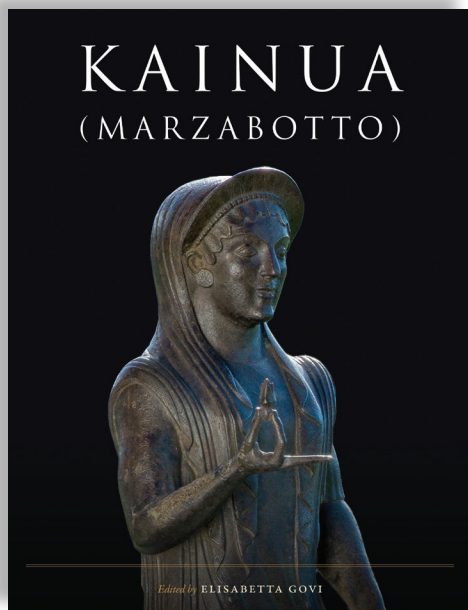

BY ANTHONY TUCK

This richly illustrated volume provides the first broad synthesis of findings at Poggio Civitate, one of the best-preserved Etruscan archaeological sites

ISBN 978-1-4773-2295-6 | $29.95 paperback

“Poggio Civitate has been the subject of many years of excavation; therefore, it has produced a huge body of material culture that has been the focus of interpretative analysis over time. This volume provides a crucial and pertinent update to long-held views by incorporating new insights from recent excavation seasons and offering a holistic survey of the site’s significance in light of these observations.”

—GRETCHEN MEYERS, Director of Materials,
Mugello Valley Archaeological Project (Poggio Colla)

Kainua (Marzabotto)

EDITED BY ELISABETTA GOVI

Leading scholars examine Etruscan culture and society through recent archaeological findings in Kainua

RELEASE DATE FEBRUARY 2023

ISBN 978-1-4773-2662-6 | $55.00 hardcover

“Kainua (Marzabotto) is a practical and easily accessible summary of knowledge about this Etruscan city. Marzabotto is still a model for understanding various aspects of Etruscan cities, particularly those founded in later periods. Through the study of material culture, understood in its multiple aspects, the history of the city and its social components, the development of domestic and religious architecture, and the city’s social and economic organization are reconstructed.”

—LUCA CAPPUCCINI, professor of Etruscology and scientific director of the University of Florence archeological excavations at Monte Giovi, San Germano e Gonfienti

“The material in Kainua (Marzabotto) is a gold mine for archaeologists and students of ancient architectural history as well as for Etruscologists. The work of Elisabetta Govi and her predecessor, Giuseppe Sassatelli, has gone a long way toward making Marzabotto understood as a more complex place than it had originally been thought to be. This is the first comprehensive study in English of this critically important gateway Etruscan community of the Bologna area.”

Democratic Law in Classical Athens

BY MICHAEL GAGARIN

Controlled entirely by the city-state's ordinary citizens, the Athenian legal system is one of the most unorthodox the world has ever known, and Michael Gagarin offers an in-depth explanation of how that worked

ISBN 978-1-4773-2037-2 | $45.00 hardcover

“Gagarin’s description of the way Athenian democracy worked and how thoroughly law and democracy were entwined is sharpened by constant and interesting comparisons to US democracy and law. His gift here is a clear discernment of differences between the two systems and a clear perception of similarities, helped a great deal by an extensive familiarity with US law bibliography evident throughout the book.”

—ADELE SCAFURO, professor in the Department of Classics, Brown University

“Gagarin’s argument is characteristically nuanced and persuasive, grounded in the sources and in a deep understanding of the operation of law both in Classical Athens and more widely in Archaic and Classical Greece. The book’s thoughtful discussion will make it a valuable addition to the collections of scholars and students of Athenian law and democracy, and it is likely to serve as a clear and accessible introduction to the subject for many.”

The Essential Isocrates

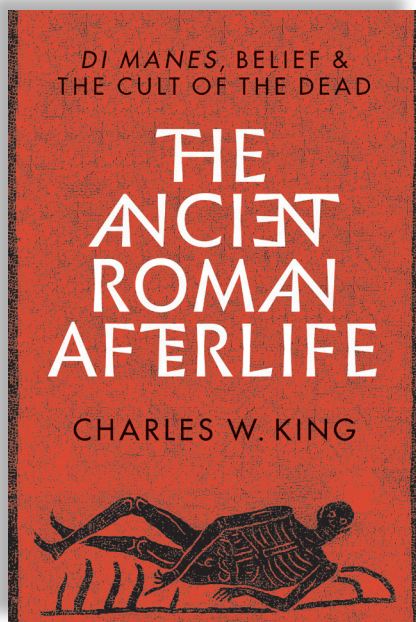

BY JON D. MIKALSON

The foundational writings of Isocrates, newly translated and placed in historical context

ISBN 978-1-4773-2552-0 | $45.00 hardcover

“Mikalson aims to present Isocrates’ thoughts on a variety of issues in his own words, thus providing a thematic guide to his ideas and observations. There is no comparable book that offers such a convenient and useful access to Isocrates’ writings.”

—JOSEPH ROISMAN, author of The Classical Art of Command: Eight Greek Generals Who Shaped the History of Warfare

The Ancient Roman Afterlife

Di Manes, Belief, and the Cult of the Dead

BY CHARLES W. KING

Restoring the manes, or deified dead of Rome, to their dominant place in the Roman afterlife, this book offers a comprehensive study of the manes, their worship, and their place in Roman conceptions of their society

ISBN 978-1-4773-2020-4 | $55.00 hardcover

“King ranges widely across literary genres, law, epigraphy, and archaeology. He provides a thorough, rigorous, and well-documented study of an aspect of Roman religion and culture that, despite its importance, has so far not received due attention.”

—JAMES B. RIVES, author of Religion in the Roman Empire

“[A] groundbreaking monograph . . . it will be an invaluable resource for scholars of religion, funerary practice and afterlife in ancient Rome and more generally. . . . King aims to use his model of variability in Roman belief to show the cult of the dead as inclusive of all Romans, living and deceased. Through extensive literary evidence and select cross-cultural comparisons, he largely succeeds. This stands to become a foundational text.”

Bronze Monsters and the Culture of Wonder

Griffin Cauldrons in the Preclassical Mediterranean

BY NASSOS PAPALEXANDROU

Uncovers the origins of illusionism in Greek art

ISBN 978-1-4773-2361-8 | $55.00 hardcover

“Papalexandrou presents a riveting body of material, griffin cauldrons, which have never received sustained discussion as a Mediterranean-wide phenomenon of the seventh century BCE. His treatment is comprehensive, with archaeological contexts discussed in detail. In addition, he astutely looks at the depiction of cauldrons in other media and contextualizes them in terms of literary references to artwork. This is a bold and creative book, rich in its interpretations and readings.”

—NATHAN T. ARRINGTON, author of Ashes, Images, and Memories: The Presence of the War Dead in Fifth-Century Athens

“Papalexandrou has assembled a magisterial study of bronze griffin cauldrons from the early Iron Age. Approaching the cauldrons as wondrous marvels, he re-creates the ancient sensory experience of encountering these magnificent bronze creations. While the griffin cauldrons have been well studied with respect to typology and dating, this book offers a sweeping set of interpretations that enriches our understanding of this period.”

—MARIAN H. FELDMAN, author of Communities of Style: Portable Luxury Arts, Identity, and Collective Memory in the Iron Age Levant

Women's Lives, Women's Voices

from all social classes in Pompeii and Herculaneum

ISBN 978-1-4773-2358-8 | $55.00 hardcover

“The editors have assembled a group of talented researchers who span a couple of scholarly generations, from established names to newcomers who grant novel insights. The result is an impressive collection of essays that can and should take its place on the bookshelves of Roman social historians, Pompeianists, and scholars of women’s lives across other times and places.”

—JEREMY HARTNETT, author of The Roman Street: Urban Life and Society in Pompeii, Herculaneum, and Rome

Sexual Labor in the Athenian Courts

BY ALLISON GLAZEBROOK

The cultural construction of sexual labor in classical Athens

ISBN 978-1-4773-2440-0 | $55.00 hardcover

“Allison Glazebrook does an especially nice job of explicating the complexities of Athenian juridical practices. Since these texts are rarely talked about, the chapters on Alke and Simon are welcome, especially the former because it points to patterns that recur in other rhetorical depictions of prostitution and significantly brings that text into the discussion of female sexuality and prostitution in ancient Greece.”

—KATE GILHULY, author of Erotic Geographies
in Ancient Greek Literature and Culture

“Allison Glazebrook’s main contribution is to direct attention to the rhetorical and cultural constructions of sex laborers, male and female. Although the speeches discussed in the book have been studied extensively elsewhere, she manages to add new insights concerning Athenian anxieties about sex laborers and how they were manipulated by the orators.”

—JOSEPH ROISMAN, author of The Rhetoric of Manhood: Masculinity in the Attic Orators
